Dear Murdoch,

Annerley Road Bikelanes Project
Construction Commencement

Brisbane City Council is pleased to advise construction of on-road bikelanes and bicycle awareness zones along Annerley Road, between Stanley Street at Woolloongabba and Rawsley Street at Dutton Park, will commence from this weekend.

The bikelanes will provide a key cycle link between the Eleanor Schonell Bridge (Green Bridge) and the Goodwill Bridge and join Stanley Street with the new bikelanes north of the Gladstone Road intersection, completing an important link in the existing bikeway network.

To minimise congestion along Annerley Road, the majority of construction activities will be carried out off-peak, at night and on weekends, with the more noise-generating works to be carried out during the daytime hours.

To accelerate the construction process, works may be undertaken in a number of different locations along the bikelanes route at the same time.

Some central medians and signals will need to be realigned to make way for the bikelanes. During these works it will be necessary to temporarily reduce traffic to one lane in each direction. This is to ensure the safety of construction personnel and motorists while these works are carried out.

During this time the speed limit will be reduced to 40kph and motorists may experience some delays as a result.

Construction of the Annerley Road bikelanes is expected to be completed by early January 2007, weather permitting.

If you have any questions about the project or concerns during construction, please call the Annerley Road Bikelanes project information line on 1800 199 757.

Yours sincerely

Michael Marlow
